

First Job Application Log

FOR THE STUDENT

Where you applied, who you spoke to, and what to do next — so a first job search is a process rather than a pile of anxiety.

When: The first time you look for paid work

Employer	Role	Applied on	How (online / in person)	Contact name	Followed up	Outcome

Before you apply anywhere

- ☐ My email address sounds like an adult wrote it
- ☐ My voicemail is set up and says my name
- ☐ I know my own Social Security number and have my ID
- ☐ I know the hours I can actually work, including school nights
- ☐ I have two people who agreed to be references
- ☐ I know the youth work rules for my age in my state

What I learned from each rejection

This is the column that gets you hired eventually.

WORTH KNOWING

- ◆ Following up once, politely, a week later, moves you up the pile more than a better application does.
- ◆ Going in person still works for local employers.
- ◆ A first job teaches things no class does. Almost any first job.
